

Sayyid Ammar Al Hakim Insists on Uniting the National Speech to Confront ISIS

Sayyid Ammar Al Hakim, head of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq, highlighted the importance of uniting the national speech in the fight against ISIS, explaining that the terrorist group is targeting everyone and that it should be confronted with more national cohesion.

This came when his eminence received a number of MPs from the province of Nineveh at his office in Baghdad on Thursday, 21/5/2015.

His eminence pointed out that the unity of Iraq is the fate of Iraqis and reiterated the importance of reaching an inclusive project and a historical compromise for solving all the problems.
