

Sayyid Ammar al- Hakim Calls for Social Solidarity to Overcome the Economic Crisis

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim, Head of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq, called for social solidarity to overcome the economic crisis. He urged the affluent class to help the needy and the families of the martyrs, recalling that spending and tenderness are aspects of faith.

This came in His Eminence's speech in the commemoration of Imam Hussein (pbuh) on the second day of Muharram at Sayyid al-Hakim office in Baghdad on Thursday 15/10/2015.

His Eminence referred to the enemies of Imam Hussein (pbuh), who recognized his patience, his determination, and his vision. He indicated that the conscious perception of the cosmic phenomenas gives an insight, and science is one of the most important tools for the seekers to possess it. Sayyid al- Hakim pointed out also that the signs of a good believer is to commit to obligations, legitimate covenants, in addition to his patience, and avoiding sins.
