

Sayyid Ammar Al- Hakim calls Arab countries and Egypt in particular support Iraq in its war against ISIS

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakim, Chairman of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq, called Arab countries and particularly Egypt to support Iraq in its war against ISIS, stressing the need to correct the distorted image that the popular forces are accused of as a result of hostile media, stressing the need that everyone should understand that Iraq's relationship with the Islamic Republic of Iran is relationship based on reciprocal interests and mutual benefits.

\r\n

This took place during his eminence meeting with Minister of Foreign Affairs of Egypt Mr. Sameh Shoukry Saturday, 07.02.2016.

\r\n

His eminence stressed that Iraq is recovering from its war and reclaiming its land and people, citing the great victory in Fallujah, indicating that preparations are underway for the Liberation of Mosul, referring to the vivid features showing national cohesion over the expense of ethnicities and sectarianism, indicating that the call for an unbiased national political bloc comes within this national endeavor.