

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakim: The Iraqi National Alliance is not an substitute or a competitive to the government

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakim, head of the Iraqi National Alliance (INA), stressed that the Alliance is not a substitute for the government or a competitor, because for the success of INA and the government the relationship should be complementary, pointing to the importance of institutional action in everything even if it was the hardest, but it is the most capable to sustain.

\r\n

This took place during his eminence presiding the General Authority meeting of the INA in his office in Baghdad Sunday, 09/25/2016, which was attended by Members of Parliament of the INA at the Iraqi House of Representatives, ministers and governors.

\r\n

His eminence stated that the unity of INA is the goal, calling for everyone's help for the achievement of this goal, which flows into the unity of Iraq as a whole considering that the INA is the largest political bloc and by reorganizing the INA all national arenas will be organized, stressing the importance of making the numerical majority to a majority in decision.

\r\n

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakim stressed the importance of dialogue and meetings and meetings of the three Authorities of the INA (the leadership the political and the general) because these meetings would work on the convergence of views and develop a common vision towards all issues, wishing the Sadrist movement would return to fill its position in the INA, pointing to INA's effort to develop its own internal structure in order to commensurate with the necessities of the stage and its requirements.

\r\n

\r\n

Chairman of the INA elaborated about the project to institutionalize the INA referring to the importance of regular meetings and the formation of committees comprised of the efficient Members of Parliament who are associated with the INA to work on enactment of laws in a unified vision at the least, indicating that the institutionalization of the INA need to activate important case files including; legislations, government, provinces, media, the INA's public and the mechanism of ensuring the public, national relations, external relations with the countries of the region and the world as well as the security strategies and the role of the popular forces and lastly the economic and responding to the economic challenges faced by the country and support the government in reform decisions that are planned for execution.

\r\n

His Eminence stressed the importance of trust between the parties of the INA, praising the role of the supreme religious authority performing as a safety valve for the country, his eminence also spoke highly of the role played by the former head of the INA, Mr. Ibrahim Al-Jaafari and before Mr. Jaafari the Aziz Al-Iraq (the Iraq Dearest) presiding the United Iraqi Coalition.

\r\n

The meeting also witnessed a speech of Prime Minister Mr. Haidar Al-Abadi, who evaluated the efforts of Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakim to hold the General Authority meeting of the INA, reviewing the outcomes of his visit to New York and how the world attend to media in the fight against terrorism and to liberate the land of Daesh, as well as a review of facts of Iraqi economic and challenges facing Iraq as a result of the drop in oil prices, noting that the meetings of the United Nations General Assembly has seen intensive meetings with world leaders and the world Bank while, yet devoting most time of meeting to discuss the battle of Mosul and post-Daesh phase and how to mitigate the humanitarian burden caused by the displacement resulting of terrorism Daesh, stressing that the most important point of advantage is that Iraq had regained its people and this is what the world did not notice and take it into account.

\r\n

The meeting also witnessed input by members of the General Authority of the INA, who praised the ideas of Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakim and his project to institutionalizing the INA , stressing their keenness on supporting the INA for the service of Iraq and its people.