

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim: Officials should apply the law on themselves before obliging the citizens

Head of the National Iraqi Alliance, Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim, stressed that officials and supporters should abide the law before they oblige people to it, noting that "as much an official is serious in reform, on the other hand people should be objective in evaluation"

\r\n

His eminence during the Ramadan evening held in his office on Friday 2/6/2017, that people should be objective in evaluating the performance of officials who are serious in implementing reforms, not asking them the impossible, and the citizen would accept the seriousness of the official doing reforms if was unable to correct all details, at the same time to the citizen should admonish the official who was not serious about reform and did not offer anything. \"

\r\n

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim warned at the end of his speech, the recent outbreak of divorce in society, urging the need to face this phenomenon by community itself through patience, endurance and not haste to this step, which destroys family life.