

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakim from Mosul University: calls on elites, competencies to assume their responsibilities in the next stage

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem, head of the National State Powers Alliance, during his tour in Nineveh Province, and meeting with the presidents of the provinces' universities and several deans and professors of Mosul University, today, Saturday, July 3, 2021, called the elites to assume their responsibilities in formulating the reassuring equation in the forthcoming phase, with emphasis on the need for conscious, active and broad participation in the forthcoming general elections.

His Eminence indicated the need to listen to the elites, saying that the previous phase focused on the security and political aspects, and some still see this as a priority over intellect and knowledge, as most of the political, security, administrative, and economic crises originated intellectually and culturally, and they need to be disassembled and examined.

His Eminence stressed that political conflicts stem from some people's belief in the ideology of possession and domination, and the clash was often without determinants or restraints.

His Eminence pointed out that our crisis is a management crisis, even to this day we are focusing solely on this important aspect to solve the Iraqi crisis, reiterating what he had previously suggested about Iraq's need for an administrative makeover, calling to benefit from the experiences of others and to seek the assistance of external consultations to achieve this.

His Eminence called for managing Iraqi diversity and building the national identity through which we build the Iraqi nation, which is a prelude to building a strong, capable, independent, stable and prosperous state. A strong society is a backbone to a strong state that preserve rights and present equal opportunities.
