

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakeem discusses political scene developments, stresses keeping security files away from political consequences with Al-Araji

Sayyid Ammar Al-Hakem, head of the National State Powers Alliance, met the Iraqi National Security Adviser, Mr. Qassim Al-Araji on Saturday, October 16, 2021, and discussed the developments of the political and security scene in Iraq and the results of the recent elections, stressing the need to keep the security file away from any political aftermath and prevent terrorism exploitation to the Political crisis to make a breach.

His Eminence made it clear that terrorism seeks to prove its existence anytime, so it is necessary to intensify the intelligence effort, perpetuate the preemptive operations, and strike the nests of terrorism before they get any bigger, stressing the need to consider all violations and challenges that marred the electoral process, and also called for a double effort in the face of some societal problems and extraneous phenomena in society. And the need for coordination and integrated work with the rest of the security services and community institutions to achieve this.
