Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim, Head of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq (ISCI), called the sons of the Movement of the Martyr of the Niche to rely on the interest of the homeland and of the citizen as the basis for competing among themselves. This came up when His Eminence presided over the expanded consultative meeting of the Movement of the Martyr of the Niche which was held at the Baghdad office of His Eminence on Monday, October 15, 2012. His Eminence stressed the necessity of cadres of the Supreme Council and of the Movement of the Martyr of the Niche being present on the field, addressing them that the closest of them to him is the one who is the foremost in serving the citizen, and they are the closest to people's hearts, too. He pointed out that Iraq has a great chance in the global and regional situation due to the history and resources it has in addition to being the Head of the Arab Summit.
