

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim emphasizes the necessity of holding the elections in all governorates of Iraq on time.

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim, head of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq, has stressed the necessity of holding the elections in all governorates of Iraq on time, emphasizing the necessity of the government reconsidering its decision to postpone the elections in both Anbar and Nineveh governorates.

This came up when His Eminence received H.E. the ambassador of the Republic of Turkey to Iraq, Unus Demerr, at his Baghdad office on Sunday, March 24, 2013.

During the meeting, a discussion went on of the bilateral relations between both countries and another of the most recent developments of the political scene in Iraq. There was emphasis on addressing all demands of the Iraqi people according to the law and constitution.
