

During the Cultural Forum, Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim Denounces the Sectarian Shout Phenomenon which Is Offensive to Good Manners and Put Society at the Edge

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim, head of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq, denounced the sectarian declarations which favor the killing of innocent people and provide an undercover for terrorist acts which take the lives of innocent Iraqis everywhere, considering such declarations as disgusting and pathetic. Moreover, he depicted them as repulsive sectarian shout that reveals the craziness of those who are calling for it.

This came in a speech delivered by Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim during the weekly cultural forum, Wednesday, 11/9/2013.

"How can we justify those who speak before the public opinion of their intentions to exterminate an entire sect - men, women, elders and children- and with what kind of religion, logic or ethics do those people speak?", his Eminence wondered. Those do not only bring shame to themselves, but also to their clans and the folks they belong to if they do not disown them, he added. For him, with this sectarian shout which is offensive to the religious and national ethics and the Arabic and tribal good manners, those people are putting society at the edge.
