

In his Meeting with Sheikhs and Leaders of Al Baydan Clan, Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim Says Iraq Cannot Be Built and its Stability Cannot Be Restored unless when All its Components Act as Partners

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim, head of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq, said involving all the components of the Iraqi people in the governance of the country helps maintain stability in Iraq, explaining that Iraq cannot be built and its stability cannot be restored unless when all its components act as partners, reiterating that Iraq needs a competent, consistent team with a well-defined vision to build the state.

This came during a meeting between his Eminence and the sheikhs and leaders of Al Baydan clan in his office in Baghdad, Monday, March 3, 2014.

His Eminence stated that all the strength points are available in the country, explaining that the strategic location of Iraq, its resources, its huge wealth as well as its history and civilization guarantee that Iraq plays a favorable role in the region and in the world. Thus he urged the Iraqi people to have a wide participation in the elections and to choose the right, competent person among the perfect list.

For their part, the sheikhs and leaders of Al Baydan clan, one of Al Mayah tribes, strongly appreciated the positions of his Eminence and his role in preserving the national unity and raising the issues and concerns of all the segments and components of the Iraqi people.
