

Presiding the central council meeting of the Martyr of the Niche Movement, Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim says the institutional work can get Iraq out of the dark tunnel

Sayyid Ammar al-Hakim, head of the Islamic Supreme Council of Iraq, says the institutional work according to a clear platform and a harmonious competent team can get Iraq out of the dark tunnel, praising the efforts of the Martyr of the niche movement members in the electoral campaign and considering the victory of the Citizens' Coalition as political victory and honorable promotion of its project and platform to run the state of the citizens. He also maintained that this victory is clear to everyone and will be always remembered.

This came during the central council meeting of the Martyr of the Niche Movement held on Monday May 12, 2014 and presided over by his Eminence.

For his part, his Eminence explained that the national alliance is key to the formation of the next government stressing the importance of national harmony and the social communication as culture and daily conduct renewing his support for the security forces in their war against terrorism. Moreover, his Eminence to the elections in Egypt and Syria and discussed the regional and international political situation.